Article Title: Gettysburg Inc.: The Use and Abuse of an Historical Icon

Authors: Oliver Gruner and Dan McCabe

Abstract: A combination of image, text, historical reflection and political commentary, this graphic research article explores the use and abuse of Abraham Lincoln’s Gettysburg Address within the US public sphere. In 155 years since Lincoln gave this speech, his words have been subsumed into all manner of heated debates on issues such as race, class, international relations and the Civil War’s legacy. Indeed, as Barry Schwartz argues, the Address’s figurative power lies not in a single interpretation, but in the way in which successive generations reinterpret it ‘in light of new situations and challenges’. From Woodrow Wilson to Franklin Roosevelt, Richard Nixon to Donald Trump, it has continually served as a rhetorical battleground upon which arbiters of various political persuasions wage war over the meaning of American democracy – past, present and future. When soon-to-be President Trump delivered his ‘Contract with the American Voter’ at Gettysburg in October 2016, he was but the latest in a long line of politicians to put the Address’s symbolic power in the service of his own ideological ends. ‘Every salesman needs a pitch’ writes the historian Jared Peatman. ‘And over time, increasing numbers of Americans came to see the Gettysburg Address as the most effective way to sell the ideals of this country, both internally and externally’.

A collaboration between a graphic designer and visual culture historian, Gettysburg Inc. is a satirical rendering of the Gettysburg Address for the contemporary era. Taking the form of a sleek corporate brochure, this article explores the disconnect between words and deeds, truth and fiction, democratic ideals and the political process. Visually, we draw on the ‘hand of Lincoln’ motif, central to the president’s visual mediation in historical paintings, sketches, political campaign posters, advertisements and sculptures. Appropriating and reframing words, images and events from the recent past, we engage with ideas on the politics of collective memory, and the symbiotic relationship between memory and ‘forgetting’. A piece of critical design, Gettysburg Inc. is a reflection on the unstable nature of collective memory, and an exploration of the ways in which graphic design can engage with, and offer new perspectives on, history and politics.

Keywords: graphic design, Gettysburg Address, public memory, politics, Abraham Lincoln critical design
Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate – we can not consecrate – we can not hallow – this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us – that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion – that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain – that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom – and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Abraham Lincoln
November 19, 1863
but it sure feels like it. With empty pockets and a head full of ideas, I became CEO of Gettysburg Inc. Building this company from nothing hasn’t been plain sailing. But as Abe Lincoln discovered, and as we at Gettysburg Inc. understand, nothing worth doing ever is. Increased devotion is what Lincoln asked of his countrymen. And that’s what we strive for, every day. We know that you do too. Sometimes, though, even the dedicated need a helping hand. Where would Lincoln have been without his allies, his Secretary of State William H. Seward, his treasurer Salmon P. Chase? Would he have unlocked his full potential without a team watching his back? It’s a tough world out there, but with Gettysburg Inc. on your side you have a design for life. We promise that an investment in our bespoke services, solutions and products is an investment in you. Let us be your helping hand; let us go forward together; and most of all let us assist you in that search for clarity, creativity and vision – that Gettysburg – that resides within us all.

Yours truly,
Bill Saunders
CEO Gettysburg Inc.

In the space of 272 words, Abraham Lincoln transformed America, bequeathing to his nation (our nation) its identity, its philosophy, its creed. The Gettysburg Address was Lincoln’s gift to us all. Inspiration wrapped in crystalline prose, it offered hope during the Civil War’s darkest days. Around 155 years later, the passage of time has done little to blunt that rhetoric: ‘Four score and seven years ago’ , a new birth of freedom! Even as the smoke lifted at Fort Sumter, Shiloh and Bull Run, those 272 words were soaring into the hearts of citizens across the land. On Gettysburg’s hallowed ground, Lincoln, as one of our finest scholars, Garry Wills, observed, ‘wove a spell that has not, yet, been broken’.

I for one am still enchanted.

Imagine a kid of 19, fresh out of business school with a burning desire to do something meaningful with his life. It wasn’t quite four score and seven years ago (whatever my younger colleagues say), but it sure feels like it. With empty pockets and a head full of ideas, I became CEO of Gettysburg Inc. Building this company from nothing hasn’t been plain sailing. But as Abe Lincoln discovered, and as we at Gettysburg Inc. understand, nothing worth doing ever is. Increased devotion is what Lincoln asked of his countrymen. And that’s what we strive for, every day. We know that you do too.

Sometimes, though, even the dedicated need a helping hand. Where would Lincoln have been without his allies, his Secretary of State William H. Seward, his treasurer Salmon P. Chase? Would he have unlocked his full potential without a team watching his back? It’s a tough world out there, but with Gettysburg Inc. on your side you have a design for life. We promise that an investment in our bespoke services, solutions and products is an investment in you. Let us be your helping hand; let us go forward together; and most of all let us assist you in that search for clarity, creativity and vision – that Gettysburg – that resides within us all.

Yours truly,
Bill Saunders
CEO Gettysburg Inc.

A warm welcome from our commander in chief, Bill Saunders

In the space of 272 words, Abraham Lincoln transformed America, bequeathing to his nation (our nation) its identity, its philosophy, its creed. The Gettysburg Address was Lincoln’s gift to us all. Inspiration wrapped in crystalline prose, it offered hope during the Civil War’s darkest days. Around 155 years later, the passage of time has done little to blunt that rhetoric: ‘Four score and seven years ago’ , a new birth of freedom! Even as the smoke lifted at Fort Sumter, Shiloh and Bull Run, those 272 words were soaring into the hearts of citizens across the land. On Gettysburg’s hallowed ground, Lincoln, as one of our finest scholars, Garry Wills, observed, ‘wove a spell that has not, yet, been broken’.

I for one am still enchanted.

Imagine a kid of 19, fresh out of business school with a burning desire to do something meaningful with his life. It wasn’t quite four score and seven years ago (whatever my younger colleagues say), but it sure feels like it. With empty pockets and a head full of ideas, I became CEO of Gettysburg Inc. Building this company from nothing hasn’t been plain sailing. But as Abe Lincoln discovered, and as we at Gettysburg Inc. understand, nothing worth doing ever is. Increased devotion is what Lincoln asked of his countrymen. And that’s what we strive for, every day. We know that you do too.

Sometimes, though, even the dedicated need a helping hand. Where would Lincoln have been without his allies, his Secretary of State William H. Seward, his treasurer Salmon P. Chase? Would he have unlocked his full potential without a team watching his back? It’s a tough world out there, but with Gettysburg Inc. on your side you have a design for life. We promise that an investment in our bespoke services, solutions and products is an investment in you. Let us be your helping hand; let us go forward together; and most of all let us assist you in that search for clarity, creativity and vision – that Gettysburg – that resides within us all.

Yours truly,
Bill Saunders
CEO Gettysburg Inc.

A warm welcome from our commander in chief, Bill Saunders
I should be glad, if I could flatter myself that I came as near to the central idea of the occasion, in two hours, as you did in two minutes.

E. Everett, public speaker and educator

We all lead busy lives. But are we busy living?

A dinner-date cancelled as the paperwork piles up. Meeting overrun — there goes Sally’s school play. They grow up fast.

It was Abraham Lincoln’s genius to understand, long before most of his generation, the importance of streamlining. And he had quite a portfolio: the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence, Civil War. Only at Gettysburg could he synergize these interests, announcing to the world: this is what counts.

When you feel ready to cut out the noise, and to dedicate yourself to the important things in life, you know you’ve reached Gettysburg.
Today you could shake the hand that shook the hand...that shook the hand of Abraham Lincoln. Hard to imagine, I know. Sometimes we can feel disconnected from the people who really matter. When, in 1913, President Woodrow Wilson addressed Gettysburg veterans on the battle's 50th anniversary, he couldn't explain why anyone had elected him in the first place: "I have been chosen the leader of the Nation. I cannot justify the choice by any qualities of my own, but so it has come about, and here I stand."

Such honesty was not easily amended in those pre-Twitter days. But in his game-changing rendition of the Gettysburg creed ("peace and union and vigor, the maturity and might of a great nation"), Wilson cascaded the secret of Lincoln's message down to his fellow Americans. And, in doing so, found what we at Gettysburg Inc. call Connecting Thread™.

That was a century ago. It's a different world now, facing new global challenges. Whether you're in the business of building bridges, building walls or breaking them down, your cause is ours.

We know that laying yourself on the line is daunting. There's a wealth of options to choose from. If only a friendly finger could point you in the right direction.

By choosing one of our customized packages, you are standing head and shoulders, Lincoln-like, above your competitors. A team of rivals becomes a stable of talented experts with our advanced networking solutions. Reach out to the blockchain with Ulysses™, voted number one in cyber futures 2017. * Or link hands with global leaders through our award-winning Yevgenysburg™.

We're proud to serve. Our trained advisors offer impartial advice without the jargon. We're clear – Gettysburg clear.

* Our CEO Bill Saunders can claim Civil War hero, General Ulysses S. Grant, a distant blood relation. As Bill often tells us, we've got Uncle Sam built into our company's DNA.
Any transition can be tough, and it’s vital to prepare you and your loved ones for all eventualities.

At Gettysburg Cemetery in 1863, Abraham Lincoln’s rhetoric far transcended that of the standard funeral oration. Above all else, Gettysburg was about human potential. In those ‘honored dead’, America’s sixteenth President prophesied a shimmering new world, one which resonates with us still.

It only takes a little joined up thinking to see the connections here. Perhaps it was a paradigm shift in Lincoln’s time, but today we know the game never ends – only the playbook changes. When President Richard M. Nixon addressed anti-war protestors on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in May 1970 he had his own challenges with which to contend: Vietnam, Cambodia, Kent State (and our kids think they have it tough!). But harnessing the power of Gettysburg, Nixon broke the negative feedback, and guided his long-haired opponents toward, in his own words, ‘matters of the spirit’.

Two years later and China was open for business.

At Gettysburg Inc. we know that it’s easy for a bump in the road to set us off course. But we also know that a mishap is nothing if not an opportunity. With offices in all major global hot spots, we can be at your side within the hour, wherever you are, whatever the situation. That’s a Gettysburg promise.
Have you ever listened to the actor Charles Laughton recite the Gettysburg Address? What about Gregory Peck, or, our favorite here at Gettysburg Inc., Daniel Day Lewis? It’s easy to get caught up in those dulcet baritones, to feel Lincoln’s words wrap around you like an old childhood blanket.

It’s okay to want a little reassurance now and then. Great speeches, like great businesses, are sometimes just about giving peace of mind.

Join a Gettysburg Preparation Plan today and you’re joining the millions of men and women who now dedicate themselves to Transcendence™.

Quote SURVIVAL on registration and enjoy a 30 per cent members discount.

The bitterness of the fight has faded for me. I only feel the love of country, the satisfaction of giving my life for it… I would like to put my hand in Abraham Lincoln’s.

M.R.S. Andrews, author
A new birth of freedom

Lincoln always knew that the Gettysburg Address was a work in progress – a great task lay before him. And he would face that task with all the fire and fury bequeathed to our presidents by that little thing we call Democracy™. Years speed by, governments come and go, big ideas are in and out of fashion. It’s a messy world, less clear-cut, perhaps, than in Lincoln’s day. Sometimes the system can seem rigged against you; broken, even. If only someone could declutter your perspective, hack through the forest, drain the swamp and help you plant the seeds of your future vision.

All this is possible with Amendments 2.0, cutting edge predictive technology developed at our labs. Benefiting from the latest research in financial futures, image management, crisis-proofing and cryogenic capabilities, there will be nothing standing in the way of you and your dreams. The world’s moving in unexpected directions, but our customers always come home to Gettysburg.

And it’s true what they say. Positive change really does begin at home. We at Gettysburg Inc. promise to continue benchmarking our services against those of our competitors, so that you don’t have to. We’ll never stop enhancing our solutions in line with your needs. Formed of dedicated professionals, led by a passionate CEO, ready for the future – Gettysburg Inc.

Visit our website to find out more: www.gettysburginc.info
Or let’s touch base offline: 01863 LINCOLN
Gettysburg Inc. small print

Page 1. ‘Four score and seven years ago […]’ Gettysburg Inc. believes the ‘Bliss Copy’ of the Gettysburg Address to be the most authoritative version of Lincoln’s speech, and that which most accurately chimes with our company’s ethos. We therefore promote Bliss in all documentation.

Page 3. ‘[A]s one of our finest scholars, Garry Wills, observed […]’ (1992: 175). Our CEO Bill Saunders keeps a pristine copy of the book on a shelf above his desk.

Page 4. ‘I should be glad, if I could flatter myself […]’ Edward Everett to Abraham Lincoln, 20 November 1863. In Roy P. Basler (1953: 25). NB: Customer testimonials are representative of, but not directly related to, services found in this brochure.

Page 7. ‘When, in 1913, President Woodrow Wilson […]’ Woodrow Wilson, Address at Gettysburg (1913). Bill Saunders spent much of the 1980s studying corporate innovation at a ‘Quality Dojo’ in New Mexico. It was here that he first discovered Woodrow Wilson’s 1913 commemorative speech and was impressed by its therapeutic approach to the legacy of war. ‘How wholesome and healing the peace has been!’ With its avoidance of Gettysburg’s more ‘controversial’ elements, Wilson’s speech – and, in general, popular Gettysburg remembrance of the early 20th century – became a major inspiration for Bill.

Page 7. ‘A team of rivals […]’ As many in politics and business will tell you, Doris Kearns Goodwin’s Team of Rivals: The Political Genius of Abraham Lincoln (2005) is a supreme study in leadership. Bill famously gives this book as a Christmas present to all new Gettysburg Inc. employees.

Page 13. ‘The bitterness of the fight has faded for me […]’ Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews (1906: 24).

Gettysburg Inc. legal statement

All images have been purchased and edited in accordance with Shutterstock standard licence guidelines. All characters, and incidents portrayed in this brochure are fictitious. No identification with actual persons (living or deceased), places, buildings, and products is intended or should be inferred. No person or entity associated with this brochure received payment or anything of value, or entered into any agreement, in connection with Gettysburg Inc. No animals were harmed in the making of this brochure.
References

Contributor Details

Oliver Gruner is a senior lecturer in visual culture at the University of Portsmouth. His research explores politics and cultural memory, in particular the ways in which the US past has been represented and ‘remembered’ in film, comics and other visual media. He is the author of Screening the Sixties: Hollywood Cinema and the Politics of Memory (Palgrave Macmillan, 2016), and has had essays published in various journals and edited collections. He is currently developing a series of collaborative projects that bring together historians and visual practitioners to explore new ways of visualizing history.

Dan McCabe is a senior lecturer in graphic design at the University of Portsmouth. He has worked in industry as both a full-time and freelance practitioner, predominantly within the fields of packaging and branding. His current research interests are focused on exploring the existence of heraldic language within twenty-first century British society. This includes looking at how heraldic language is used in corporate and cultural branding, and the parallels between the ancient practice of heraldry and the contemporary practice of brand identity design.